Objection to Objection to Discharge #171

On May 20, 2019 a motion was submitted by Nubiyah M. Mze Kewe Esq. on behalf of Yamaris Bell.

- (1) Cassandra Johnson-Landry is entitled to bankruptcy protection. This is not evidence violating travel, debt or bad faith Business dealings. A claim was previously submitted with supporting documents and evidence to support alleged calculated, premeditated and Malicious intent towards plaintiff.
- (2) It is very obvious counsel is collaborating and possibly battling on receiving a form of unethical gesture given the time frame for this current objection to discharge. It appears also counsel possibly engaged in inappropriate relationships with particular individuals associated with Plaintiff Debtor case. This is an effort to sabotage Plaintiff Debtor

(3) The court currently has jurisdiction, however, given the assigned trustee for Plaintiff was given complete control of Plaintiff's estate by the assigned judge, it appears counsel is utilizing the court jurisdiction to assist with ensuring Plaintiff's loans all come.

(4) Tamara Bell was a contractor for Plaintiff's Agency. Ms. Bell was ruled by the IRS as an independent contractor. She was paid for all work ~~per~~ completed. Ms. Bell abandoned her contract and obligations without adequate notice. Although she did not submit all timely documents, she was compensated fully.
